

Weldon's Method In-Take Form

This form helps us understand your family well enough to make a real recommendation. We are not asking you to solve the whole problem here. We are trying to understand your goals, your current reality, and the main pressures shaping this decision. After this form, we will have a conversation to clarify what matters most and determine the right path forward.

33. What would make this feel sustainable — financially, practically, and relationally — instead of overwhelming? And what else should we know that could affect how we help your family?

Thank you for taking the time to complete this. Our goal is not to hand you generic homeschool advice, but to understand your family well enough to recommend a realistic and faithful path forward.

After reviewing your form, we will open our conversation by asking what we may have missed or misunderstood. Think about whether anything important was hard to capture here.
